Student and Early Career Scientists Conference 2019

Abstracts are now being accepted for both oral and poster presentations for the next Royal Meteorological Society Student and Early Career Scientists Conference.

We take abstracts from undergraduate students, graduate students and early career scientists in fields related to meteorology and climate. We accept a broad range of work from meteorology, atmospheric physics and climate science and encourage the submission of work in its preliminary stages.

For more detailed guidelines and a list of keywords to include with your abstract, please visit the website.
